NORTHWEST ASSURED
NORMAL FUEL SUPPLY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
MILWAUKEE, Aug. 28.—The northwest is assured a normal supply of fuel at least for the greater part of the winter, according to a prominent dealer here today and possibly a price lower than heretofore.
Action of the federal government in regulating fuel supply and prices has saved the consumer thousands of dollars which otherwise would have been divided up between producers and middlemen, he said.
However, it was proclaimed, the fuel dealer is not to blame. High prices for coal it was said have been caused entirely due to shortage of transportation facilities. In support of this the following facts were presented:
There has been and is a vast shortage of cars.
Lake boats have been called into shore service, many of them going to Chicago.
Boats in Milwaukee held only about 50 per cent of the normal supply of coal at the time of the president's price fixing announcement.
There is increased demand for fuel in particular at manufacturing plants.
Railroads are using and storing more coal than ever before to keep up exceedingly heavy traffic.
The federal government's contract for more coal than ever before, as far as trans-Atlantic shipping agencies.
The government is solving the problem in the way it could be solved, he asserted. It can regulate shipment of coal to prevent misuse of the visible supply and at the same time control prices. However it was pointed out that the coal is not controlled by regulation of the supply without actually setting a maximum.

"Hoop up a minute, for that's what I'm doing," said the man. "We've got to give them a show, Harding! The chances are that every man in that commissary believes that McGraw has the law on his side, and we are not sure that we haven't. Anyway, they don't know that they are trying to stand off a sheriff's posse!"

Harding's chuckle was sardonic. "You mean that we'd ought to go over under and read the riot act to 'em?" "That's right," said the man. "But he can't get into that camp over there with the serving papers. We'd have to be armor-plated, I reckon."

"Just the same, we've got to give them their chance," Smith insisted doggedly. "We can't stand for any unnecessary bloodshed—I won't stand for it."

Harding shrugged his heavy shoulders. "One round into that sheet-iron commissary should bring 'em to time—and nothing else will. I haven't got any more to throw away on the devils and firebrands."

Smith sprang up and held out his hand.

"You have at least one man that you can spare, Mr. Harding," he snapped. "Give me those papers. I'll go over and serve them."

At this the big sheriff promptly lost his temper.

"You blasted fool!" he burst out. "You'd be down before you could get ten feet away from this ditch!"

"Never mind; give me those papers. I'm not going to stand by quietly and see a lot of men shot down on the chance of a misunderstanding."

"Take 'em, then!" rasped Harding, muttering more than the calling of a foolish theorist's bluff.

Smith caught at the warrants, and before anybody could stop him he was down upon the stationer, swiping himself from bent to bent through a storm of bullets coming out from the commissary, but from the stationer's pocket he drew a whistle and a whistling shower of lead that made every man in the sheriff's party duck to cover.

How the volunteer process-server ever lived to get across the bridge of death no man might know. Twice in the half-minute dash he was hit; yet there was life enough left to carry him stumbling across the last of the stage-hops; to send him reeling up the runway at the end and across the working yard to the door of the commissary, waving the folded papers like an inadequate flag of truce as he fell on the doorstep.

After that, all things were curiously hazy and undefined for him. There was the rumble of a fierce battle being waged over him; a deafening rifle fire and the spat-spat of bullets punctuating the sheet-iron walls of the commissary. In the midst of it he lost his hold upon the realities, and when he got it again the warlike clamor was stifled and Starbuck was kneeling beside him, trying, apparently, to deprive him of his clothes with the reckless slashings of a knife.

Preensetting feebly and trying to rise, he saw the working yard filled with armed men and the returning throng of laborers; saw Colonel Baldwin and Williams talking excitedly to the sheriff; then he caught the eye of the engineer and beckoned eagerly with his one available hand.

"Hold still, until I can find out how dead you are!" cried the rough-and-ready surgeon who was playing the clothes-ripping knife. But when Williams came and bent down to listen, Smith found a voice, shrill and strident and so little like his own that he scarcely recognized it.

"Call 'em out—call the men out and start the gate machinery!" he panted in the quaver, whistling voice which was, and was not, his own. "Possess—possession is nine points of the law—that's what Judge Warner said; the gateways, Bartley—shut 'em quick!"

"The men are on the job and the machinery is starting right now," said Williams gently. "Don't you hear it?" And then to Starbuck: "For Heaven's sake, do something for him, Billy—anything to keep him with us until a doctor gets here!"

Smith felt himself smiling foolishly. "I don't need any doctor, Bartley; what I need is a new ego; then I'd stand some show—some chance of finding—" he looked up appealingly at Starbuck—"what is it that I'd stand some chance of finding, Billy? I—I can't seem to remember."

Williams turned his face away and Starbuck tightened his beaming grip upon the severed artery in the bared arm from which he had cut the sleeve. Smith seemed to be going off again, but he suddenly opened his eyes and pointed frantically with a finger of the one serviceable hand. "Catch him! Catch him!" he shrieked. He's going to dynamite the dam!"

Clinging to consciousness with a grip that not even the blood loss could break, Smith saw Williams spring to his feet and give the alarm; saw three or four of the sheriff's men drop their weapons and hurl themselves upon another man who was trying to make his way unnoticed to the "Catch him! Catch him!" Stagings with a box of dynamite on his shoulder. Then he felt the foolish smile coming again when he looked up at Starbuck.

"Tell the little girl—tell her—you know what to tell her, Billy; about what I tried to do. Harding said I'd get killed, but I remembered what she said, and I didn't care. Tell her I said that that minute was worth living for—worth all it cost."

The raucous blast of a freak auto horn ripped into the growling murmur of the gate machinery, and a dust-covered car pulled up in front of the commissary. Out of it sprang first the doctor with his instrument bag, and, closely following him, two plainclothes men and a Brewster police captain in uniform. Smith looked up and understood.

"They're just a little—too late, Billy, don't you think?" he quavered weakly. "I guess—I guess I've fooled them, after all." And therewith he closed his eyes wearily upon all his troubles and triumphs.

CHAPTER XXVII.

In Sun-Isle Gulch.

William Starbuck drew the surgeon aside after the first aid had been rendered, and Smith, still unconscious, had been carried from the makeshift operating table in the commissary to Williams' room in the office shack.

"How about it, Doc?" asked the man owner bluntly.

"The surgeon shook his head doubtfully.

"I can't say. He'll be rather lucky if he doesn't make it, won't he?" Starbuck remembered that the doctor had come out in the auto with the police captain and the two plainclothes men.

"Huckerman has been talking," he quavered.

The surgeon nodded. "He told me on the way out. If I were to Smith's place, I'd rather pass out with a bullet in my lung. Wouldn't you?"

Starbuck was frowning sourly. "Suppose you make it a case of suspended judgment, Doc," he suggested.

"The few of us here who know anything about it are giving John the benefit of the doubt. They'll have to show me, and half a dozen of us, before they can send him over the road."

"He knew they were after him?" "Sure thing; and he had all the chance he needed to make his getaway. He was shot while he was trying to get between and stop the war and keep others from getting killed."

"It's a pity," said the surgeon, glancing across at the police captain to whom Colonel Baldwin was appealing. "They'll put him in the hospital cell at the jail, and that will cost him whatever slender chance he might otherwise have to pull through."

Starbuck looked up quickly. "Tell 'em he can't be moved, Doc Dan," he urged suddenly. And then: "You're Dick Maxwell's family physician, and Colonel Dexter's, and mine. Surely you can do that much for us?" "I can, and I will," said the surgeon promptly.

Three days after the wholesale arrest at the dam, Brewster gossip had fairly outworn itself telling and retelling the story of how the High Line charter had been saved; of how Crawford Stanton's bold ruse of hiring an ex-train-robbler to impersonate a federal-court officer had fallen through, ruthlessly abandoned by the unnamed principals, languishing ballless in jail; of how Smith, the hero of all these occasions, was still lying at the point of death in the office shack at the construction camp, and David Kinzie, once more in keen pursuit of the leaves and fishes, was combing the market for odd shares of the stock, which was now climbing swiftly out of reach. But at this climax of exhaustion—or satiety—came a distinctly new set of thrills, more titillating, if possible, than all the others combined.

It was on the morning of the third day that the Herald announced the return of Mr. Josiah Richardson from the Topaz; and in the marriage notices of the same issue the breakfast-table readers of the newspapers learned that the multimillionaire's daughter had been privately married the previous evening to Mr. Tucker Jibbey. Two mining speculators were chuckling over the news in the Hophra House grill when a third man came in to join them.

"What's the joke?" queried the newcomer; and when he was shown the marriage item, he nodded gravely. "That's all right; but the Herald man didn't get the full flavor of it. It was a sort of runaway match. It seems; the fond parent wasn't invited or consulted."

"I don't see that the fond parent has any kick coming," said the one who had sold Jibbey a promising prospect hole on Topaz mountain two days earlier. "The young fellow's got all kinds of money."

"I know," the land broker put in. "But they're whispering it around that Mr. Richardson had other plans for his daughter. They also say that Jibbey wouldn't stay to face the music; that he left on the midnight train last night a few hours after the wedding, so as not to be among those present when the old man should blow in."

"What?"—in a chorus of two—"left his wife?"

"That's what they say. But that's only one of the new and startling things that isn't in the morning papers. Have you heard about Smith—or haven't you been up long enough yet?"

"I heard yesterday that he was beginning to mend," replied the breaker on the left. "He's on the mend, if faster on the left."

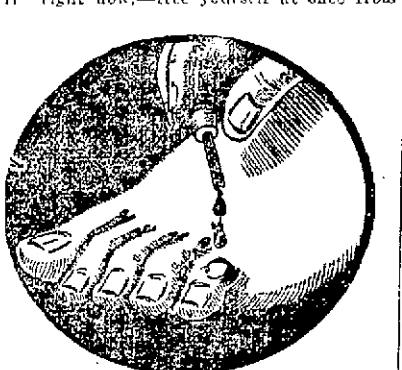

"You're out of date," this from the dealer in ranches. "You know the story that was going around about his being an escaped convict, or something of that sort? It gets its local color this morning. There's a sheriff here from back East somewhere—came in on the early train; name's Macanulty, and he's got the requisition papers. But Smith's fooled him good and plenty."

Spread over the top a layer of jelly or preserves. Beat whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, add four tablespoons sugar and juice of the lemon. Spread this on the sides of the pudding.

Apple Pie Pudding—Soak one cup Tapioca in one quart water over night. Add one cup sugar, one cup seedless raisins, one pineapple sliced very thin, five apples sliced very fine. If needed, add a little warm water. Bake one and one-half hours. Beat whites of two eggs to a stiff froth, add two tablespoons pulverized sugar, spread over pudding and brown. Serve with cream.

Cocoanut Pudding—One teaspoon cocoanut, six crackers rolled fine, three eggs, one pint milk, one-half cup milk. Beat together eggs, sugar and milk. Put in baking dish a layer of cocoanut then of crackers, then pour over the custard. Bake in slow oven. Stir in vanilla cream or sweetened condensed milk.

Banana Cornstarch—Put one quart milk on stove to heat. Mix four tablespoons cornstarch, one-half cup sugar with enough milk to make a batter. Stir into the hot milk and cook until thick; remove from fire and stir two bananas into it; flavor with lemon or vanilla. This makes a nice inexpensive dessert and is improved by serving with cream.

Apricot Pudding—One cup stale bread crumbs, one cup fresh or preserved apricots cut in dice, one-half cup sugar, one-fourth cup butter, one-half cup water, one-fourth cup apricot syrup. Butter a baking dish, cover bottom with layer of crumbs, over it place the fruit, cover with crumbs, dot with bits of butter, then layer of apricots, and so on until dish is full. The upper layer should be crumbs, covered thickly with bits of butter. Pour over a portion of the liquid or add it in making the pudding. Place in a pan of water and bake an hour. Take from the water and finish baking fifteen or twenty minutes. Serve with cream.

Prune Pudding—One cup cooked prunes, three-fourths cup granulated sugar, one cup chopped nuts, one-half cup milk, one tablespoon butter, one-half cup cranberry or bread crumbs, one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon vanilla, pinch of salt. Mix crumbs, baking powder and sugar, add milk slowly, then the prunes chopped fine, then the nuts. Stir in vanilla and salt, add the melted butter, turn into buttered baking dish and bake in moderate oven in pan of hot water for half an hour. Serve hot or cold with plain or whipped cream.

Boiled Apple Pudding—Five apples, peeled, cored, washed and sliced; three-fourths cup beef suet chopped fine, one quart flour, heaping teaspoon baking powder, salt to taste. Mix suet with dry flour, add sufficient water to make a stiff dough, roll half thick. Or, put butter in jelly glasses or baking powder cans and steam one hour. Good with any kind of pudding sauce.

TO MEND COAT POCKET. When mending the corner of a man's side coat pocket, thread sewing machine with black thread, lay coat under machine foot, fix each piece of cloth straight and with a pin pull little threads under, with machine sew zig-zag down the torn place, then zig-zag back up; cut thread, put down pocket flap, and see what a neat job you have done.

Dinner Stories

A certain man, feeling exceedingly ill, required of a friend whom he should consult, and was recommended to a eminent specialist.

"Is he very expensive?" asked the patient.

"H'm, no; he'll charge you $5 for the first visit and $2.50 afterward."

So the invalid went to the doctor in question and upon being admitted to the consulting room slammed down $2.50, accompanied by the remark:

"Well, doctor, here we are again!" The doctor calmly picked up the money, opened his desk, placed it therein and looked the drawer.

"The patient waited awhile."

"Well, aren't you going to examine me?" he said at length.

"No," said the specialist, "there's no need to do it again. Just keep on with the same medicine."

In one of the mining towns of Arizona, says Harper's, there is a church that has an excellent young pastor, but the attendance, unfortunately, is small. Among the members is a rather attractive young widow. One evening, when the attendance had been unusually small, she met the deacon after service, who shook hands heartily and asked: "How did you like the sermon?"

"I think it was just too perfectly lovely for anything," gushed the widow, "but the congregation was so small tonight that every time the preacher said 'dearly beloved' I positively blushed."

A tramp asked a gentleman for a few pence to buy some bread. "Can't you go into any business that is more profitable than this?" he was asked.

"I'd like to open a bank if I could only get the tools," answered the tramp.

If apples are cored before paring they will keep their shape better.

Home-Reading Course For Citizen-Soldiers

(Issued by the War Department and all rights to reprint reserved.)

This course of thirty daily lessons is offered to the men selected for service in the National Army as a practical help in getting started in the right way. It is informal in tone and does not attempt to give binding rules and directions. These are contained in the various manuals and regulations of the United States Army, to which this course is merely introductory.

LESSON NO. 13.

GROUPING MEN INTO TEAMS.

Note—This lesson is based upon the present organization of the United States Army. Some changes may be made later.

(Preceding Lessons: 1. Your Post of Honor. 2. Making Good as a Soldier. 3. Nine Qualities of a Soldier. 4. Getting Ready for Camp. 5. First Days in Camp. 6. Cleanliness and General Order. 7. Your Health, 8. Marching and Care of Feet. 9. Your Equipment and Arms. 10. Recreation in Camp. 11. Playing the Game. 12. Team Work in the Army.)

The smallest unit or "team" in the army is the squad. A squad usually consists of eight men, one of whom is the leader; he is called the "corporal." You will be assigned to a squad almost at once in entering the army. At first you may be shifted about considerably from one squad to another, but within a short time you and seven other men will be brought together as a permanent team. This means that you will work together, drill together, and sleep in the same tent or in the same section of the barracks. You will come to know the other men in the squad through and through, and they will become equally well acquainted with you. Some of them will probably grow to be your close and life-long friends. On the other hand, there may be one or two whom you dislike or do not respect.

The Squad Unit. In any case remember this: The eight men in a squad form a team in the same sense that a baseball nine or a football eleven is a team. Your squad is connected with all the other squads in your company. Whenever it shows itself especially well drilled, quick to learn new duties or careful in respect to cleanliness and general bearing, you pile up a few points in your favor. The umpires are the officers of your company, and you may be certain the men watching your squad every minute of the day—not watching for chances to criticize but watching hopefully for signs of soldierly spirit and intelligence.

It is your first duty to help your own squad make a good showing. Also it is your own interest to do so. There is no more pleasure or reward for you in belonging to a poor squad than there is for a ball player belonging to a losing team. Take pride in your squad and its good work. If you find you have one man among you who is lazy or childish, try to get him into a different attitude. Every squad has at least one weak link. The best way to handle him is to talk to him until you get him as much interested as you in making your squad rank as the best in the company.

Incidentally, your captain is not likely to overlook the best squad when it comes to picking men for promotion.

The Platoon and the Company. Three or four squads (usually three) may be joined in the next higher unit, which is called a "platoon." The platoon, however, is not so permanent as a squad, but is formed whenever there is need for it in drilling or on the firing line.

Next comes the company, which is made up at full strength of 160 men; this is about 15 squads or six platoons. This number is "war strength" in our old tables of organization; the first division now in France has 200 men per company. It is probable the strength may be 250 per infantry company. However, these figures for the number of squads and of platoons are not definitely fixed. A company in the field is very seldom at full strength, and it may be convenient at any time to change the numbers of squads and platoons.

The company is a permanent "team" in the sense in which we have been using that word. Its members always live together, eat together, drill together, and fight together. All of the officers and soldiers in a company become well acquainted. Each man's points of strength and of weakness are known. Outside of your own company you probably know very few men, only those with whom you come into touch by accident or while you are serving on some special duty. This is something worth thinking about. You are probably going to live, eat, drill and fight with the other men in your company so long as you remain in the army. The sensible thing to do is to conduct yourself in such a way as to command the liking and respect of these men from the very beginning.

Four companies are joined in a "battalion." The battalion is an important unit in the army organization, but is not so clearly marked as either the company or the regiment.

Regiments, Brigades, and Divisions. The regiment consists of three battalions making twelve companies. In addition, there are three special companies which do not belong to any battalion. These are headquarters company, including the band and the color guard; the machine-gun company, to be referred to later; and the supply company, responsible for the regiment's food, ammunition, and other supplies. Counting in everyone, the regiment at full strength is made up of 2,600 men. It will grow more than this with the increase in strength of companies. 2,600 is the strength of infantry regiments in the first expeditionary division. The regiment is, of course, very seldom at full strength, but is never allowed to remain below a minimum strength of about 1,400.

The regiment is the unit that is especially important to the soldier. Its loyalty. The most cherished traditions of the army are made up of the splendid deeds of famous regiments. The soldier identifies himself through and through with his regiment. His love for the army centers in his regiment. His most sacred memories cluster around the regimental battle flags.

Two regiments are joined in a brigade. Thus the brigade is built up by assembling individual soldiers into squads; squads into platoons; platoons into companies; companies into battalions; battalions into regiments, and regiments into brigades.

Brigades may in turn be joined to form divisions, divisions may be joined to form corps, and corps to form field armies. All of the army's divisions and separate detachments and departments taken together form the "big team"—that is to say, the United States Army. The make-up of the big team is treated in a later lesson.

FIELDER JONES TO REMAIN AS MANAGER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 28.—Announcement is made by Phil Hall, president of the St. Louis American League club, that despite severe criticism, Fielder Jones will be retained as manager for the 1918 season. Hall also said that Jones could trade the entire team, if necessary, to acquire men suited to his style of play.

The poor showing of the team this year is not Jones' fault, Hall said. "Accidents and sickness among the players handicapped the club from the first. The slump has subjected Jones to severe criticism.

"The owners of the club think highly of Jones' ability and will give him all the support necessary to bring out a winning club next year. Jones will stick. We want him on the job."

The team never has been intact. First, Favonius was shot and when Shotton became ill, Next, Weisman went under the surgeon's knife. Then there broke a wrist. Favonius also has been out of the lineup and on. Six of the club's best four weeks on a bad foot. Austin broke a finger and finally Hank retired from baseball. It is absurd to blame Jones for all this misfortune. He is entitled to another trial and he will get it."

When informed of Hall's statement, Jones said:

"I will rebuild my team around Slater, Price and Austin. I am not going to tear this club apart just to experiment. I know it is a good ball club as it stands and I am going to take much additional strength to whip it into a winner."

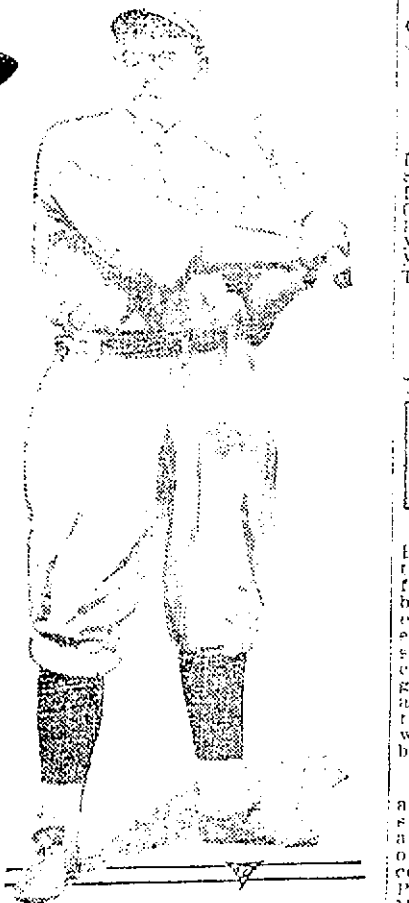

CHAMPION IN SERVICE OF HIS GOVERNMENT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Cleveland, O., Aug. 28.—Johnny Kilb, the famous champion boxer, and his manager, Jimmy Dunn, regarded as one of the best teachers of boxing in the country, are to serve in the army. Kilb is a graduate of Princeton university, and formerly of the University of Chicago, in course of this department of the service. Kilb, Dunn and his wife will give boxing instruction.

Before Slim Love of the Yankees was turned down by the army examination board, because he was too light in weight for his height. Possibly Slim will turn up and again ask to be taken on by Uncle Sam.

Before Leon Cadore of the Brooklyn Dodgers passed the examination for the army with a high percentage, claimed an exemption and sent to his home in Italy. President Clegg probably will declare a holiday in his honor.

ROUSH WINNING BATTING LAURELS

Ed Roush, Cincinnati Reds outfielder, looks like a sure bet to win the batting honors this year in the National League. He has out-hit his Federal League record with ease, and he has left-handed pitchers with merriest abandon.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

MORRIS MILLER

The release of Jack Meyers by the Brooklyn Dodgers was expected, but that of Bill Lowrey was not looked for. Several times it had been hinted, but always Lowrey came back strong enough to hang on. His walking papers now indicate that Manager Robinson is satisfied that Frank O'Rourke can fill the third base job for the Dodgers. With Krueger and Mack Wheat added to the Brooklyn catching staff, there was no further need of Meyers, whose work this season has been very below par.

It seems that the report that Manager Fred Mitchell and some of the stockholders of the Chicago Cubs are not out of a question one of the stockholders asked Mitchell concerning when he intended moving Pete Kilgus up in the batting order. Mitchell's answer, rather short and to the point, was that he would exercise his own judgment in the matter. President Weegman has made haste to assure the public that Mitchell will arrange the batting order of the Cubs.

They have never appreciated Chuck Ward in Pittsburgh, but any time the Pirates want to get rid of him George Ward is quoted as saying that Ward has the makings of one of the greatest infielders in the game, and when he says infielder he means that Ward can play any position on the diamond and do it well. Ward is not a heavy hitter, but he gets them when they count, as shown by the fact that he is tied with Max Carey in the matter of driving in Pittsburgh runs.

Talking about the pitching of the Giants, it looks like John McGraw was outpacing the rest of the National League to death, as instance the starting line-up was won, etc. of Harry Sawyer, Fred Schupp and Rube Benton. They say the Giants can't hit spiltball pitching. It might also be remarked that seven teams can't hit Giants southpaw pitching.

Charley Jackson, who is a new Pirate, led the Northwestern league in runs scored this season, was third in stolen bases and tied for the leading home run scorer. He batted .303 for Spokane. When the Northwestern League closed its season he played independent ball at Port Benton, Mont., until the Pirates made a deal for him.

Walter Holke's promise that he would strike his hitting stride in August seems to be coming true. The big blonde first secker of the Giants has had a great many chances to show "the ball safe" since the hot month opened. Benny Kauff is another Giant who has been climbing rapidly in percentage.

Shortstop Chuck Ward of the Pirates has been called under the draft, expects to pass and says he has no objection. In fact he is ready to go and believe it is a fact. He expects to leave the Pirates soon with the Missouri conscripts, his home being in St. Louis.

OLD RAILROAD TO BE USED AS FARM

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Denver, Col., Aug. 28.—The most unique farm in the United States will be sown in wheat or alfalfa this fall. It will be fifty-five miles long and 200 feet wide, and will occupy the right-of-way of the Denver & Laramie railway, which will be "junked" Sept. 1 by its owner, M. S. Ratelsky. The farm will be owned by the Denver & Laramie railway, and will pass through the business sections of several small towns between the two.

The railroad, which has never paid, was recently purchased by the public by the Denver & Laramie railway, and will be sold for junk, and the right of way used as a wheat or alfalfa farm. The owner is now negotiating with the state public utilities commission.

DEFENSE BOARD GETS PLENTY OF PUBLICITY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Aug. 28.—The patriotism of Wisconsin newspapers was proven today by the record of the publicity department of the State Council of Defense.

In one month seventy-six articles, bulletins and other forms of information for the public were issued by the council. All of these urged the cooperation of the Wisconsin public in the war work of the nation.

The first campaign conducted was to conserve the seed supply and increase the acreage of crops. The Liberty Loan sale, the recruiting campaign, the enlisting of health aides and publicity which has resulted in cheaper coal were among other subjects.

The council has a record of the publication of 19,830 inches of publicity in Wisconsin papers for these campaigns. All furnished free in spite of the fact that the newspaper publisher has paid higher prices for paper and for all other expenses of a newspaper office than ever before. Newspaper space has doubled in value in the last year.

Had the Wisconsin newspapers insisted on being paid for this service, it would have cost the state $2,000 for the space indicated in the record. This record, however, is far from complete, and represents only a part of the publicity sent out by the council. Hundreds of columns have been written by the editors. It is safe to estimate that the state has been given $5,000 of free advertising since war was declared for its patriotic work, figured on the minimum advertising rate of 10 cents an inch. A rate card for every newspaper probably would make this amount nearer $25,000.

GOV. PHILIPP MAKES SCATHING REPLY TO FREE PRESS ATTACK

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Aug. 28.—Governor Philipp today made public the following letter, which he has written to the Milwaukee Free Press:

August 26, 1917.

Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Gentlemen:—In your editorial of August 24th you take me to task for statements which I made in my speech to the soldiers at Camp Douglas. Your quotation from Jackson's message and the historical facts that are related therein do not in the least relieve the American nation of its obligation to the French people for the assistance they gave us during the revolutionary war.

The difficulties of 1801, when the French directorate refused to receive the American ambassador unless the country paid into the French treasury a quarter of a million dollars, and which brought out Pinckney's famous reply, "Millions for defense but not a cent for tribute," the events that followed and the final payment by the French government of five million dollars during President Jackson's administration in settlement of all claims, cannot be used to obliterate from the pages of our history the valuable aid that France gave us during our revolutionary period. The names of La Fayette, Rochambeau and D'Es-taing will live with the names of the other revolutionary heroes.

It has truthfully been said that French aid, French armies and French administration in settlement of all claims, saved liberty for the United States. This is what I referred to in my remarks.

However, I am not so much interested in your interpretation of American history as I am in this statement in your editorial: you say: "That is to say, Emanuel L. Philipp wants Germany and Austria crushed."

This country is sending an army to France. The fourteen thousand men assembled at Camp Douglas, whom I addressed, have been called for that service. My understanding is that they are to engage in battle with the troops of Germany and Austria, and in doing to it will be our purpose to crush them even more completely, the armies of the central powers.

I wish to inquire what your views are upon the question of the purpose of the American army that we are now sending to France. Do you mean to advocate that we send an army equipped with blank cartridges to be merely shot down by the army of the country with which we are engaged in war?

That we are engaged in war you will admit. That we are sending troops to the French frontier to do our fighting you must know. You accuse me of wishing that the forces of our enemy be crushed. What I want to know is, which army do you wish to have crushed? You assume to be a student of history. If you are, you know that a nation cannot engage in war with another nation without either crushing the enemy or being crushed itself, and I shall ask the Free Press to make a plain statement in which it will set forth its own affiliations. Tell us, if you please, just where your heart is, in order that we will know how to treat with you.

There are two kinds of journalism that could well be spared at this time. One is the kind that aids and abets the enemy and the other is the kind that condemns people as a class on the ground that they are not patriotic. Patriotism is a personal responsibility for which the individual alone is accountable. If there be a German in America who is not a patriot, it does not follow that every other German in America is not a patriot. This is a time when newspaper editors may properly use some caution.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Milwaukee, Aug. 28.—Bring the shepherds of the west to Wisconsin! is the slogan of the Wisconsin Advancement association, which will invade the great lakes wool convention at Chicago next month with volleys of arguments for the up-state grazing lands. It is estimated there are 10,000,000 acres of available sheep land.

GOV. PHILIPP MAKES SCATHING REPLY TO FREE PRESS ATTACK

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Aug. 28.—More than 200 horses are entered in thirteen harness events for the Dane county fair which opened here today. Aside from that there are seven entrants in the Dane county derby, which will be staged Friday, the closing day of the fair. Purses amounting to $10,000 are up for the events. All the races promise to be one of the biggest features, the fair this year is larger in every respect than in previous years, despite war work.

Studying the Future.

"So you are going to get married," said Miss Cayenne.

"Yes," replied the confiding young man.

"Well, which kind of marriage is it to be—one where you go to live with the bride's folks or the bride's folks come to live with you?"—Washington Star.

Because a man is permitted by his wife to sit out on the front porch and smoke his pipe he tries to give the impression that he is boss of the ranch.—Florida Times-Union.
